Ecumenical Social Week: we expand our vision

On October 2-4, the 12th Ecumenical Social Week, dedicated to the theme "Responsibility vs Populism" was held in Lviv. Series of events, dedicated to the topic of populism, responsibility and values of a modern human being, took place within the forum in Lviv. Special attention was also paid to the topic of inter-confessional reconciliation.

According to Forum participants, populism is not a one-way movement, but primarily a two-way communication. The speakers of the event believe that the populism cannot be completely eliminated; it can only be reduced. That is why all of us should be able to take responsibility first and foremost for ourselves and our actions and develop critical thinking.

The final thesis of the Forum, dedicated to the Youth as the Driving Force of Society, was expressed by UCU Rector Rev Fr. Dr. Bohdan Prach "Let us think of young people not through the prism of critique or imposition of our own visions. They need to have our personal testimony. There is no other way to work with the Youth."
